Come Join Us for the Fifth Anniversary of Harvard Serves!

The Harvard Club of Southern California invites you to participate in Harvard's fifth annual Global Month of Service this April. Last year 230 local alumni volunteered, and for 2013, in honor of the initiative's fifth anniversary, the Club hopes to double that number.

Once again this year, the "Harvard Serves" Kick-Off event on March 19, at the stunning architectural offices of Michael Lehrer, GSD '78, was a tremendous success, with 65 attending. Alumni met with representatives of 18 local non-profit organizations, each with its own Alumni Volunteer Coordinator. Service opportunities extend throughout the greater Southern California area, and encompass a wide variety of activities, ranging from animals, to emerging artists, to inner-city youth, to health care for the homeless. It's not too late to volunteer! Please see the list of projects available to alumni, their family, and friends this April, starting on page 4. You can also sign up at <http://www.harvardla.org>.

Smiling volunteers and Alumni Site Coordinators at the March 19 Kick-Off for Harvard Serves SoCal.

HAA Director Liz Ryan AB '81 co-chairs the Global Month of Service for the Harvard Alumni Association, and is the Harvard Club of Southern California's Public Service Coordinator as well. Last year of the 53 cities who participated in this HAA initiative, Southern California's volunteer participation topped them all. "Whatever your skill, and wherever your neighborhood, we've got a volunteer activity for you. Come join the fun!" says Ryan.

Lunar New Year Banquet at Mission 261 Restaurant - 3/2/13

The Wellesley Club of LA and the Harvard Club co-chaired this banquet to celebrate the Lunar New Year. On March 2, over 40 attendees enjoyed a 9-course dinner at the Mission 261 Restaurant in San Gabriel. Special guest, actor James Hong, graciously posed for photos with guests after showing a brief clip of his many film roles and speaking about his experience as a pioneering Asian American actor. Pictured left to right are Jeannie Park (Wellesley co-chair), Ethel Seminario-Lackzo, Thuy Le (Wellesley co-chair), special guest actor James Hong, Curtis Jang, Albert Chang (Club President), Kay Park, Jonathan Baskin, and William Glass.

Dr. Barbara Natterson- Horowitz AB '83, AM '83 at UCLA Medical Center - 3/3/13

Harvard Shorts Film Competition Coming to Los Angeles

This spring, Harvard is hosting its fourth annual short film competition, open to undergraduate and graduate Harvard students. This year's competition features an exciting new development, as Harvard alumni will get to vote for the winning submissions online and meet the student winners at a reception to be held at the Writers Guild West headquarters in Los Angeles on May 20. HCSC members will receive an email in mid-April with a link to a Harvard Alumni Association website where the three-minute film entries will be on display and alumni can vote for a favorite. Selected students will then be flown out to Hollywood for the May 20 reception, sponsored by HCSC and Harvardwood, at which their works will be screened and they will participate in a panel discussion moderated by Harvard Professor Shigehisa Kuriyama, Reischauer Institute Professor of Cultural History and Chair of the Department of East Asian Languages and Civilizations. Watch your email in April for a link to the films, and check the newsletter in May for further details on how you can help discover Harvard's next crop of filmmaking talent. For more details, please contact Patric Verrone at pverrone@aol.com.

Q&A from 02138... Devon Newhouse

(These interviews are a regular contribution to the HCSC Newsletter and will spotlight students enrolled at Harvard who are from Southern California)

Devon Newhouse '13 was born in Los Angeles. She graduated from Mayfield Senior School in Pasadena where she ran cross country and served as editor of the school newspaper. Newhouse, a History of Science concentrator and Currier House resident, volunteers in the First-Year Outdoor Program ("FOP") leading backpacking trips to orient about 400 freshmen and 100 upper classmen into the New England backcountry for a week where her main assignment was ordering and organizing the food. She served on the FOP Steering Committee. She is the daughter of George B. Newhouse, Jr. '76 (Kirkland House), former president of the Harvard Club of Southern California and current vice-president of membership, and Maura Thorpe, and sister to Denny Newhouse '11 (Adams House), Caitlin Newhouse '10 (Dunster House), and James Newhouse, a sophomore at Boston College. Her plans following graduation are to travel to South Asia, either India or Bangladesh.

HCSC: When was the first time you visited Harvard and what were your impressions at that time?

DN: I first visited during my dad's 25th reunion. I figured it was a place where you got to go do fun things (like amusement parks) see cool things (like Yo-Yo Ma playing at the Boston Pops) and eat as much sugary cereal as you could ever want! Life as a Harvard student involves all three of those things.

HCSC: What was your favorite class and why?

DN: I took a two-person History of Science graduate student seminar on Empire and Environment last spring with a great professor. It was a very challenging course, (and because there was only one other student in the class I couldn't slack on any of the work) but I learned so much. It also informed much of my thesis research!

HCSC: How do you think Southern California will figure into your future after Harvard?

DN: Definitely moving back. Boston is great, and I've loved my time at Harvard, but I am a Californian through and through.

HCSC: What has been your funniest moment at Harvard?

DN: My freshman fall, my two older sisters and I all took a government class together. It was not a large class, and the professor more or less knew all the students, and thought it was quite amusing that she had three sisters who were taking her class—and that we would sit all together, in the same row each week. One week, much to our chagrin, she made a comment about "... the Newhouse girls, sitting in the third row!"

HCSC: Did your older sisters give you advice on how to navigate your experience at Harvard, and, if so, elaborate.

DN: So much so! Both sisters played huge roles in guiding my development. I remember once towards the beginning of freshman year, Denny sat down with me and just showed me how to look up books and articles on Hollis, the library portal. It was such a small thing, but it was so helpful and indicative of the sort of things I never had to worry about figuring out on my own. Since then, that is something I always offer to show my freshman advisees in the Peer Advising Fellow program, where I have 9 freshmen advisees whom I meet with and check in about academics, dorm, and extracurricular life.

HCSC: How do you think the Harvard experience was different for you and your sisters as compared to when your dad was a student?

DN: I think a lot about computers, for one thing. It would be difficult, if not impossible, for me to go through the day without using computers or internet. That, and sometimes I think about how social interactions would be different without cell phones and texting. Would a person call her friend's room to set up a lunch or dinner date?

HCSC: If you were President of Harvard, what would change?

DN: I would put much more of an emphasis on Pre-orientation and leadership development programs like FOP.

HCSC: What do you miss most about Southern California?

DN: I miss the chaparral environment. Even though the New England backcountry is beautiful – and I love leading backpacking trips - it is a different kind of beauty. Surrounded by greenery and trees, I find myself wishing for the subtle browns and golds of my San Gabriel and San Bernardino mountains.

HCSC: What was your senior thesis topic?

DN: I wrote about the Los Angeles Aqueduct—a topic really close to home! I looked at how depictions of the landscapes of the Mojave desert and Owens Valley in the Los Angeles Times affected decisions that were made about the land. In my thesis I argued that Los Angeles had (and probably still has) a complicated relationship to nature in 1905. They saw what they were doing in terms a conquest of nature-- that nature was something that needed to be fought, tamed, and exploited-- and they wrote about it in this way. At the same time, Los Angeles saw itself as a city where people could return to nature-- in the form of citrus groves, poppy fields, and snow capped mountains in the background. Thus, the Los Angeles Times accounts of the aqueduct were particularly interesting and contradictory. While sometimes they referred to the "army of workers" and "aqueduct generals" who were battling the mountains and desert, other times they spoke of restoring nature through the building of the aqueduct. (Editor's Note: Newhouse turned in her thesis days before answering these questions)
