Harvard College Admissions Update

The Harvard College Class of 2018 is set. Eighty-two percent of those students offered admission to the Class of 2018 accepted, representing the highest yield realized by Harvard since the Class of 1973. In Southern California, applications were up slightly from last year, increasing to 2,719 applicants. One hundred and twenty-five candidates were accepted throughout the Southland, a 4.6% acceptance rate, and 100 chose to matriculate at Harvard, an 80% yield. The Class of 2018 represented a diverse, talented, and accomplished group. "The Class of 2018 reflects the excellence achieved by the students of an increasingly diverse America," said William R. Fitzsimmons, dean of admissions and financial aid. "Attracting such outstanding students to the College is vital to Harvard's mission of educating the future leaders of our nation."

Financial Aid again played a crucial role in attracting such a diverse and talented group. Nearly 60% of the Class of 2018 will receive need-based financial aid grants, paying an average of only $12,000 annually. The total cost of tuition, room and board and fees for next year is $58,600.

Interviews again played an important role in the admissions process. According to Dean Fitzsimmons, "We rely on the alumni interview to give Admissions a viewpoint that you can't get from personal statements or recommendations. I think the alumni interview is one of the key aspects in our decision making process and I don't know how other schools can make a decision without alumni input."

If you are interested in interviewing next year, please contact Dan Medina '79 MBA '83, the Schools and Scholarships VP, at dan@capknowledge.com or (626) 893-2925. A list of Southern California students attending Harvard from the Class of 2018 can be found on page 4 of this newsletter.

Constance Rice AB' 78, JD ' 84 (New York University School of Law), civil rights attorney and community activist in Los Angeles, is the recipient of the 2014 John Harvard Award for Distinguished Community Service. Her powerful 2012 memoir "Power Concedes Nothing: One Woman's Quest for Social Justice in America From the Courtroom to the Kill Zones" depicts her indefatigable struggle to foster civil rights and achieve social justice. Hailed as the "Voice of LA's Oppressed," she has spear-headed police reform, and mitigated gang violence. She continues her quest for social justice as Founding Co-Director of the Advancement Project.

Maryann Cummins, Master Piano Teacher (Educator of the Year)

Maryann Cummins, accomplished pianist, music teacher and tireless promoter of music, is the recipient of the 2014 Educator of the Year Award. Cummins has taught music in Santa Monica since 1970 and her students have earned prestigious awards and scholarships in music conservatories. She founded the Elizabeth Mandell Music Institute at Crossroads School for Arts and Sciences which has served as the model for other music programs in Los Angeles. Cummins received a bachelor's degree in music from DePaul University and did her graduate studies at the University of Chicago while playing improvisational piano in the famed Second City comedy troupe.

Q&A from 02138... Aubrey Walker '15

(These interviews are a regular contribution to the HCSC Newsletter and will spotlight students enrolled at Harvard who are from Southern California. Nominations to profile students from our region are invited.)

Aubrey Walker '15 is a pre-medical student residing in Dunster House, and he concentrates in Human Evolutionary Biology: Mind, Brain and Behavior, with a secondary in Global Health and Health Policy and a citation in Spanish. He was born in Pasadena, California and graduated from Polytechnic High School, where he served as president of the Associated Student Body Government and the Black Students' Union. He played two years on the Varsity Basketball team and participated in five theatre productions (both plays and musicals). He served as a peer mentor and a tutor for freshmen and middle school students. Along with his triplet siblings, Charles (American University), and Nicole (Barnard College), he worked throughout middle school and high school in his father's barbershop and salon, Just-In-Time Hair Trends in Pasadena sweeping up the floors, answering the telephone, greeting customers, and running the register. The triplets and the work ethic their parents "Chuck" and Diane instilled in them were profiled in a Los Angeles Times article in 2011.

HCSC: What surprised you most about Harvard?

AW: I was most surprised by how much I enjoyed the fast-paced New England culture. I was amazed by how much Harvard valued study-abroad experiences. Both of my summers and winter term breaks, I have taken advantage of such opportunities. I volunteered at pediatric and cancer hospitals in Peru, surveyed rural health of indigenous populations in Chile, and have taken a course on the history of Western philosophy, and another on interracial literature in Italy.

HCSC: What has been your favorite course?

AW: HEB 1310: Hormones and Behavior. I was able to gain a better understanding of the evolutionary and endocrinological underpinnings of sex differences and gender/gender identity.

HCSC: Describe some of your academic work?

AW: In my academic department, I currently perform thesis research on evolutionary behavioral neuroscience with my advisors Richard Wrangham and Joyce Benenson. I seek to understand the psychosocial, behavioral, and physiological dynamics of cooperation amongst high vs. low status individuals.

HCSC: What extra curricular activities are you involved with?

AW: Outside of academics, I spend most of his time at Harvard as an intern at the Harvard Foundation for Intercultural and Race Relations, where I recently finished directing Cultural Rhythms 2014, Harvard's largest cultural performance showcase. In addition, I am a member of the Institute of Politics at the Kennedy School and helped to author a policy piece both addressing the problem of mass incarceration and recommending suggestions to decrease rates of recidivism. I am also a First-Year Urban Program leader and help facilitate understanding among incoming first years with regards to ethnicity, sexuality, gender, and socioeconomic status.

HCSC: What do you do in your "free" time?

AW: I participate as a member of the intramural Ultimate Frisbee team in Dunster House and am a model in Eleganza, Harvard's largest charity and diversity fashion show.

HCSC: Do you intend to return to Southern California after Harvard?

AW: I plan to return to Southern California for medical school or to complete my residency. I hope to pursue an MD/PhD in social anthropology or psychology, as I am interested in how human sociality and behavior influences health outcomes, especially with regards to racial, ethnic, and sexual minorities. I am a proud Southern Californian, and regardless of future aspirations, plan to settle down and raise my family in the very place that I called home.

Interview with Alumni Interviewer... Aaron Wilson '03 - North Orange County Chair

Each admissions season, alumni interviewers, under the leadership of our Club's Schools Committees, help the Admissions Office evaluate applicants to Harvard College. The Schools Committee is the Club's largest volunteering activity. Each year, over 700 graduates of Harvard College and graduate schools interview over 2,700 candidates from our region. In the process, alumni participate in college fairs throughout the area and give presentations on Harvard, initiating and maintaining relationships with parents, guidance counselors, other alumni/ae, and the general public. Immediate Past President Daniel A. Medina, A.B. '79, M.B.A. '83 is our Club's vice president for Schools, and he coordinates the Schools Committee's work with the area chairs who divide up the interview assignments among alumni and manage the operations for their geographic area. The newsletter will feature profiles of the area chairs.

Aaron was an electrical engineering and computer science major at Harvard and lived in Mather House. While at Harvard, he met his wife, Aarti (Khanolkar) Wilson '03, and they currently live with their 2-year-old daughter in Beverly Hills.

Aaron worked for Sony Pictures for nearly 10 years, creating computer-generated effects for movies. He received his MBA from the UCLA Anderson School of Management in 2012 and is currently a manager of marketing and development for Moonfrye, a small startup focused on inspiring creativity in parents and children.

Aaron began interviewing for Harvard immediately upon graduating and moving to Los Angeles, as a way to maintain a connection to the school. He has served as the co-chair of the North Orange County area for the past four years. Aaron also serves on the board of the Club.

Aaron has interviewed many incredible candidates over the years, but his most memorable was definitely the student who had created a DIY chemistry/physics lab in his garage and came to the interview equipped with videos of his homemade Tesla coil and fusion reactor. Sadly (although perhaps in the best interest of the general student body), he was not admitted to Harvard.

The North Orange County Area Schools Committee alumni interview applicants from 49 schools across 69 zip codes from Santa Ana to Whittier.

This year, the committee had requests for interviews for 296 applicants, including 27 early action applicants. 6 of the early action candidates were accepted, and all of them will be attending Harvard in the fall. For regular season, 6 candidates were accepted and 3 have announced their intention to matriculate in the fall.
