Harvard Football Wins Season Opener at University of San Diego Before Record Crowd of Crimson Supporters

In Harvard's first trip to the West Coast since 1949, when the Crimson were trounced by the Stanford Indians, 44-0, Harvard's football team returned to defeat the University of San Diego 42-20 at Torero Stadium on Saturday, September 21, 2013 in front of a record crowd of 4,256 spectators. The crowd, comprised of an impressive number of regional Harvard alumni, friends, family and fans, included a large contingent of members of the Harvard Clubs of Southern California and San Diego, which Harvard officials estimated at more than 2,000, making this football game the largest West Coast Harvard sporting event in over sixty years.

Various activities were hosted around the game, including a pre-game tailgate with over 450 Harvard fans at which former Club President and former All-Ivy League rover back, George B. Newhouse, Jr. '76 was the master of ceremonies, all jointly planned by the Harvard Department of Athletics, the Harvard Varsity Club, the Harvard Alumni Association, the Friends of Harvard Football and the two local Harvard Clubs.

The boisterous Harvard fans dominated the action in the stands, as did the players on the gridiron, creating an atmosphere that Coach Tim Murphy, Thomas Stephenson Family Head Coach for Harvard Football, called "electric."

Coach Murphy, now in his second decade at the helm, praised the Harvard turnout and game-day enthusiasm, observing that the alumni's support "turned it into a home game 3,000 miles from home!"

And the team responded. After a sluggish first half, in which the first Crimson score of the year was by the defense, when defense end Zach Hodges '15 (Atlanta, GA) scooped up a fumble by the Torero's quarterback on Harvard's forty-seven yard line, and scampered into the end zone for a touchdown, the Crimson never relinquished the lead. In his first start as the signal caller, quarterback Conner Hempel '15 (Union, KY) was 25 of 34 for a career-best 345 yards, four touchdowns, and no interceptions. Star receiver Andrew Fischer '16 (Diamond Bar, CA) had two touchdowns and 71 receiving yards on six catches overall, while Seitu Smith II '15 (Deerfield Beach, FL) led Harvard with 89 reception yards. On the ground, Paul Stanton, Jr. '16 (Kenner, LA) gained 64 yards on six carries and added one touchdown run. On defense, cornerback Norman Hayes '15 (Tucker, GA) led the way with 12 hard-hitting tackles and an interception that set up Harvard's final touchdown pass to Fischer three plays later to pull away, 42-20.

The Crimson will host the Brown Bears in the home opener at Harvard Stadium Saturday, September 28, 2013 at 7:30 p.m. The game will be shown live nationally on the NBC Sports Network.

Issues in Education - Educators' Roundtable (Potluck Lunch)

A recent study by the American Academy of Arts and Sciences on the role of the humanities in education points out that if our nation is to prosper it must create the circumstances likely to produce highly capable people equipped for a rich personal life and able to fulfill their duties as citizens, and that it is education's role to create such circumstances. How are our schools preparing these future citizens? Educational programs and solutions abound, but schools continue to struggle and the dialogue continues. Join your fellow alumni in a discussion of these and other programs and solutions.

Date: Saturday, October 19, 2013
Time: 12:30 - 2:30 P.M.

Q&A from 02138... Jose Magana, '15

(These interviews are a regular contribution to the HCSC Newsletter and will spotlight students enrolled at Harvard who are from Southern California. Nominations to profile students from our region are invited.)

Jose Magana '15 is a junior residing in Eliot House. He majors in Economics, with a Global Health secondary and a citation in Chinese Mandarin. He was born in Mexico but currently lives in Los Angeles (when not in Cambridge), having graduated from South El Monte High School in 2011. This past summer, he directed one of Phillips Brooks House Association's ("PBHA") twelve summer urban programs - Boston Refugee Youth Enrichment ("BRYE"). He was in charge of hiring and managing staff; fundraising for a $90,000 operational budget; recruiting campers; obtaining government licensing; and maintaining relationships with families, schools, and the community of Dorchester. During the school year, Jose is PBHA's After School Programming Group Officer, overseeing fifteen after-school and in-school programs. He also serves on the Eliot House Committee, planning the annual Eliot Charity Event. Jose also is a regular volunteer at the Harvard Square Homeless Shelter and the treasurer for the Latino Men Collective. He is the first person in his family to attend college.

HCSC: What surprised you about being a student at Harvard?

JM: The overall diversity of its campus. It was amazing to see where people came from geographically, but also to hear about their high school experiences, extracurricular interests, religious and political beliefs, as well as cultural traditions.

HCSC: When was the first time you visited Harvard and what were your impressions at that time?

JM: I first got to campus for pre-orientation program. I had never visited the campus before starting my freshman year, so it was an amazing feeling to enter the yard for the first time and dorm that same night. A group of classmates and I met up at the airport, all coming from different locations. We got to Harvard by taxi at around midnight, so the dim light in the yard was a beautiful background sight as I entered by Harvard Hall and stared at the historic John Harvard.

HCSC: What was your favorite class (or professor) and why?

JM: I really enjoyed Societies of the World 44: Human trafficking and slavery. It has nothing to do with what I want to study, but it was an extremely eye opening course. The readings, guest lecturers, and Professor Paterson were all great and always interesting. The course put light on forced labor, child labor, forced child prostitution, child soldiers, and all other types of human trafficking.

HCSC: Describe your summer position as director of the BRYE camp in PBHA's Summer Urban Program.

JM: This past summer was the most rewarding and challenging of my life. My camp was the only of the twelve that PBHA offers during the summer to focus on ESL teaching and assimilation for recent immigrants from various countries. As an immigrant myself, I decided to come back for a second summer because of my amazing first experience with the kids, families, and community of Dorchester. Although I did have experience as a returner to the program, BRYE challenged me to my limits for the past seven months, both physically and mentally. Our typical day, as expected, was from 5:30am to 6:30pm, five days a week. Weekends were almost always entirely taken up by meetings, activities, camping with the kids, requirements, or simply planning for the week. As a director/senior counselor this summer, BRYE 2013 meant I had to be part of the director team making all administrative decisions and making sure camp runs on a daily basis while also planning curriculum and leading a class of ten energetic 5 year olds. As a senior counselor, I interacted with the families almost on a daily basis. Although I saw the kids every day, talking to guardians and staying in contact with the student's home aided me in keeping focus around our mission.

HCSC: What will you focus on during your junior year?

JM: I plan on continuing my academic commitment to Economics and Chinese Mandarin, being an officer for PBHA, mentoring teens in Boston, and being involved in the Eliot House Committee. I also plan on joining a study group at the Institute of Politics on either education reform or immigration policy and possibly exploring the entrepreneur track.

HCSC: How do you think Southern California will figure into your future after Harvard?

JM: I definitely plan on moving back to Southern California after graduation, or after attending graduate school. I love Boston, its convenient transportation system, and its historic and beautiful scenery. However, the warm beaches and attractive places in Southern California are too hard to resist!

HCSC: If you were President of Harvard, what would change?

JM: This is a small change (definitely philosophical or about current policies), but no school on Housing Day for undergraduates! Or at least, no midterms on that day! Housing day is one of the most fun and interesting days of your freshman year. It is rare to see everyone on campus get together for a few hours, forget about tests and deadlines, and show pride for their houses. It is a day that freshmen have been anticipating and stressing about for months.
